Many musical terms often appear in piano music; some are even intended for piano only. Learn the definitions of the terms you will need as a pianist. • View terms: A – D E – L M – R S – Z • scala musicale: music scale; a series of notes according to a certain range model; music key. Examples of music scales: Scala cromatica (chromatic scale): Has every half of the notes in octave. Scala diatonica (diatonic scale): Made from 5 full step intervals and 2-sided steps pattern (no more than three and at least two healthy steps in a row). Scala maggiore (large scale): diatonic scale with a happy character. Scala minore naturale (natural small scale): diatonic scale with somber mood. Scala minore armonica / scala minore melodica harmonic minor and melodic minor scales, respectively. • scherzando: playfully; play jokingly or lightly and happily when used as a music term. Often used to describe or name a musical composition that has a playful, childish character. • scherzandissimo is a term that means very playful. • scherzetto means shorter scherzando. • scherzosamente: used as a synonym for scherzando. • seconda maggiore: major 2nd; indicates the total range consisting of two half-steps; the whole step. Also tone. • seconda minore: minor 2nd; half-step interval (grayscale). Also semitone. • segno: sign; means a character that participates in a complex system of music replays. In the form of words, most often shortened D.S. (dal segno). • Semiton; the smallest interval between inscriptions in modern Western music, usually called half a step. In Italian, this is also called seconda minore: a small second interval. • semplice / semplicemente: simply; Play passage without frills or ornaments; play straight forward (but not necessarily without expression). • sempre: always; used with other musical terms to keep their impact steady, like sempre accentato: accentuation throughout. • senza: without; used to explain other music terms as senza espressione: without expression. • senza misura / senza tempo: without measurement / time; indicates that a song or passage may not be played because of rhythm or pace; have rhythmic freedom. See rubato. • senza sordina / sordine: without mute [suppressors]; play with a supported pedal depressed, so the silencers do not have a muffling effect on the strings (silencers always touch the strings, unless lifted with sustainable or throne pedals). Note: Sordine is a plural, although sordini is sometimes written. • serio: seriously; play seriously, contemplatively without geese or playfulness; also see descriptive names of musical works, like the third movement ferruccio busoni huge Piano Concerto C, Op 39, pezzo serio. • (sfz) sforzando: a reference to a strong, sudden accent note or chord; means subito suddenly with force. Sometimes written as a note accent. Similar commands are: (sfp) sforzando piano: adhere to a strong accent with (p) piano (sf) subito fort: suddenly play (f) forte • (smorz.) smorzando: gradually slow down and soften notes until nothing is heard; diminuendo, which will disappear very slowly, often accompanied by a very gradual and. • solenne: solemn; play with silent reflections; also often seen in the titles of musical compositions, as in the first busoni piano concert movement C, Op. 39 – Prologo e Inno: Allegro, dolce e solenne. • sonata: played; sounded; a style of musical composition, which usually involves two or more movements that are written for instruments (or one solo instrument) rather than a voice. Initially, the two main forms of the composition included sonata (played [with instruments]) and tattoo (singing in [voices]). • sonata is shorter or less complicated sonata. • sopra: above; more; often seen in octave terms, such as ottava sopra, which instructs the pianist to play inscriptions with a higher octave than written on the staff. • sordina: mute; these are piano suppressors that rest on the strings all the time (unless lifted by pedal) to limit their resonance duration. • sostenuto: long-term; middle pedal on some pianos, which is sometimes missed. (Do not be confused with a sustainable pedal that lifts all silencers at once.) The Sostenuto pedal allows you to keep certain notes, while other keyboard notes are not affected. It is used to hit the desired notes, then depressing the pedal. The selected notes will resonate until the pedal is released. In this way, long-term notes can be heard along with notes played with the staccato effect. Sostenuto as a symbol of music can mean tenuto. • spirits: with a lot of spirit; play with palpable emotions and beliefs; also seen in descriptive names. • staccatissimo: play with exaggerated staccato; keep the notes very detached and short; marked in the following ways: as triangular accents above or under the observations Write the term staccatissimo next to the standard staccato characters; in handwritten compositions. • staccato: make brief remarks; unlink comments from each other so that they do not touch or duplicate. This effect on articulation contrasts with the effect of legate. Staccato is marked in music with a small black dot placed above or under the note (not sideways as a dotted note). • stretto: thick; narrow; press to fast acceleration; crowded accelerando. Watch the stringendo. The stretto pedal can be seen in excerpts with many supported pedal signs. This instructs the pianist to remain agile on the pedal so that the difference between pedals and non-pedal notes remains clear and fragile. • stringendo: pressing; hasty, fussy accelerando; to increase the pace with hastily impatience. See affrettando. • subito: fast; suddenly.; used in combination with other commands to make sure immediate and abrupt effect. • Tasto: Key, like the piano key. (The music key is tonalità.) • pace: time; indicates the speed of the song (the frequency of multiple rhythms). The pace is measured in rhythms per minute and at the beginning of sheet music is indicated in two ways: Metronome signs: ♩ = 76 Tempo terms: Adagio is about 76 SPM • tempo di menuetto: play minuet tempo; slowly and gracefully. • tempo di waltz: waltz tempo; a song or passage written in the rhythm of the waltz; 3/4 time with accent downbeat. • : tough time; instructs the performer not to take any liberties with the rhythm of the music; play in time exactly as written. • tempo ordinario: normal, simple pace: play at medium speed (see As a time signature, the tempo ordinario specifies 4/4 of the time, or total time. In this case it is also known as tempo alla semibreve. • tempo primo: the first pace; shows a return to the original speed of the song. Often written in sheet music as a tempo I. See come prima and tempo. • rubato: robbed of time. The rubato itself suggests that the performer can take liberties with articulation, dynamics, or general expressiveness of the song's dramatic effect. However, rubato usually affects the pace. Watch ad libitum, piacere, and espressivo. • teneramente: with tenderness; play with subtle care and attentive volume; also con tenerezza. See delicato. • tenuto: held; highlight the full value of the note; keep a note without breaking the measurement rhythm or the normal note value. Tenuto can be understood by realizing that while you can play out inside his actual length, there is usually a very short breath between the notes. However, tenuto does not create an alegate effect, as each note remains different. Marked in sheet music, a short horizontal line above or under the affected notes. • timbro: timbre; also known as tone color. Timbre is a specific voice quality, for which it is unique; the difference between two notes played in the same volume with the same articulation. For example, when listening to an electric guitar and an acoustic, or a bright vertical piano compared to a massive concert grandn, the difference you're watching is timbre. • tonalità: the musical key; the group of notes on which the musical scale is based. The piano key is tasto. • tone: [full] tone; indicate the total range of two grayscale; a whole step (M2). Also called seconda maggiore. • tranquillo: calmly; play relaxed; quiet. • : three rows; reference to release the soft pedal (also called una corda pedal); to stop the soft pedal effect. Una corda, meaning one line, works to soften the volume, allowing only one row in one key to resonate. Since most piano keys have three strings, the third corde indicates back to all strings. • tremolo: trembling; Tremor. In piano music, tremolo is performed by repeating one Or chord as quickly as possible (not always loud or obviously volume) to keep the pitch and avoid attention decomposition. Tremolo is indicated for sheet music with one or more slashes through the out strain. One slash indicates that the note should be played with chapters of the eighth note; two slashes indicate the divisions of the sixteenth note, etc. The length of the main note explains the total duration of tremolo. • tristezza: unfortunately; sadness; play with an unhappy, melancholy tone; with great sadness. It can also refer to a musical composition with a sad character, usually a small key. See con dolore. • troppo: too [many]; usually seen in the phrase non-troppo, which is used with other musical terms; for example, rubato, ma not troppo: take liberties with pace, but not too much. • tutta forza: with full force; play a note, chord or passage with a very heavy accent. • una corda: one line. The Una corda pedal is used to enhance the timing of soft-spoken notes and helps to exaggerate the small volume. The soft pedal should be used with notes that are already played silently and will not dissemination the desired effect on louder notes. See tre corde. • valoroso: with valor; portray a brave and courageous character; indicate a strong, bright volume and tone. • vigoroso: with vigour; Play with great enthusiasm and strength. • vivace: live; indication of play very fast, optimistic pace; faster ne allegro, but slower than presto. • vivacissimo: very fast and full of life; play very fast; rather than vivace, but slower than prestissimo. • vivo: alive; with life; play with a very fast and live pace; similar to allegrissimo: faster than allegro, but slower than presto. • (V.S.) volti subito: turn [page] suddenly. In piano music, this term instructs the pianist's assistant to be a vigilant spectator reader and to keep up with the fast-paced music being played. • zeloso: zealous; play with zeal and desire; most likely, it will be visible in the title of the musical composition, although it remains rare.
